

Announcement: Seeking qualified software developers

Kodikas IT is a newly established software company founded in the United States that provides consulting services to American clients remotely from Greece. We are looking to identify qualified candidates with a strong software development background that could be available to work on projects as soon as contracts with the clients in the US are signed. The selected candidates will work only for the duration of projects as independent contractors, interfacing directly with the clients while being supervised by our manager locally in Greece.

This is not an offer for full time employment, rather it is a notice of intent for engaging developers in the near future, on a per-needed basis as contractors. Reimbursement for the contractors' services will be hourly until the completion of their assignments. It is expected projects can range from one to several months at a time.

The potential projects will require:

- Front End Developers
- Back End Developers
- Mobile Developers
- Application Developers
- Web Developers
- Network Developers
- Webmasters
- UI/UX Designers
- Systems Architects
- System Administrators
- Database Administrators

Qualified developers must have 2 to 10 or more years of working experience on one or more of the above fields, have excellent knowledge of the English language and be willing to work both on short notice and on a flexible schedule to compensate the time difference between Greece and the United States.

For more information you can visit the Kodikas IT site at: <https://www.kodikasit.com>. Interested candidates can submit their resume for consideration to the email address info@kodikasIT.com along with a brief description of their current work status, experience and availability.
